

Tigar the

HUNGRY

By: Delisha Saabira Yasni

Tiger

@brightly_beaming

https://www.brighterfuture.live/brightly\_beaming.html

Tigar the Hungry Tiger

1st Edition, July 2025

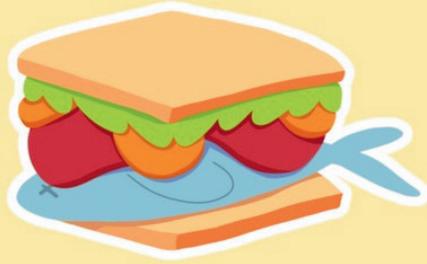

Copyright©2025 Delisha Saabira Yasni

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced without the prior permission of both the copyright owner and the publisher of this book.

The following story is fictional, and plots, places and events are either products of the author's imagination or not to be construed as real.

The author and publisher disclaim any liability incurred from the use or application of the contents of this book.

Published by Brightly Beaming
Bangkok Patana School
643 La Salle Road (Sukhumvit 105),
Bangna Tai, Bangna, Bangkok 10260 Thailand

Tigar the

HUNGRY

Tiger

Tigar the Hungry Tiger

By: Delisha Saabira Yasni

Deep in the heart of the forest lived a carefree tiger named Tigar. He spent his days peacefully, hunting for food, sleeping in his cosy cave, and sometimes even wandering around the forest with his friends. However, on a bright sunny day, he was suddenly awakened by a powerful grumble from his stomach.

But, what's weird about today was that Tigar didn't want to eat any ordinary meat like he usually does; he craved something different, something new! Without another thought, he decided to visit one of his trusty friends named Crilly The Crocodile.

"Good morning Crilly! How have you been?" greeted Tigar.

"Hey! Not much, Loozy just recently visited me from the Arambia forest" answered Crilly.

"Ooh, isn't that your sister?" asked Tigar.

"Yeah! She's here 'cause I asked for some help cleaning the river. How about you Tigar? What brings you here?" asked curiously by Crilly.

"Well, I was wondering if you had any food you'd be willing to share, do you?" Tigar asked respectfully.

Crilly paused for a while then remembered that Loozy brought some fish from the Arambia Forest.

"I actually do! Let me bring some for you Tigar!" exclaimed Crilly before diving into the river to take the fish Tigar desires.

In just seconds, Crilly emerged from the river, bringing out four fish that Loozy brought him.

However, as Tigar was looking at the fish, his eyes narrowed. The fish looked delicious, but something deep inside him craved for something more. Out of respect, he took the fish with him on his journey.

“Thank you Crilly! Tell your sister I said hi, I’ll be off now.” said Tigar before he left to go see his next pal Ruby the Rabbit.

He arrived at Ruby’s humble home expecting to see her inside, but to his surprise, there was no one to be seen. Suddenly a familiar voice called out Tigar from behind the house “Tigar! Over here!”.

Tigar walked slowly towards the back of the house where he saw Ruby tending a lovely garden with her paws still dirty from the soil.

“What do you think of my garden? I’ve been working on it since this morning, see, I haven’t even washed my paws.” said Ruby excitedly.

“Wow, it looks great! Really like what you did there with the flowers. Say, Ruby, you don’t possibly have any food you could share with your pal, don’t you?” asked Tigar

“You came at the right time Tigar, I just harvested some fresh and crunchy vegetables from this garden, and I’m happy to share some with you!” Ruby exclaimed.

She hopped inside her house and returned with a basket of veggies.

“Here you go! My newly harvested lettuce and carrots just for you!” presented Ruby.

While looking at the basket Tigar forced a smile, but a flicker of dissatisfaction crossed his face. He should’ve known better than to expect from a Rabbit’s diet.

“These look nice Ruby, I’ll bring them with me, thank you so much!” said Tigar politely before heading off to see his last friend Landon the Lion.

Landon lived in a dark and scary cave where no one ever dared to go in. Trees were drooping at the front of the entrance making it an eerie scene. The sound of ominous loud roars echoed outside the cave that resembled animals screaming for their lives. This cave terrified every animal in the forest, but not Tigar, he had known Landon his whole life. So, he fearlessly went inside the cave.

“Landon! Landon! Gosh, don’t tell me he’s still sleeping at this time of day.” sighed Tigar as he walked deeper into the cave and just as he expected the loud roars you could hear from the outside were just Landon’s beastly snores.

“Landon! Half of the day is almost over, wake up!” Tigar yelled, his voice echoing through the cave.

Suddenly, Landon jumped out of his slumber blinking rapidly as he tried to figure out who was yelling, just to be disappointed to see Tigar’s face.

“Hey! What was that for?” exclaimed Landon.

“Finally, you’re awake. How’s it going, Landon?” Tigar asked.

“Yeah, yeah, I’m fine. No one ever visits, but I like it that way. Just me, this bed, and the best part-food.” Landon replied.

“Oh yeah, speaking of food, do you have any?” Tigar asked with a smirk

“Do I have any food? What kind of joke question is that? Of course, I have food, help yourself!” offered Landon.

Landon started rummaging through his cave until he found his stash of deer meat.

“There, take as much as you want Tigar!” presented Landon before taking a huge bite of a deer meat thigh.

But, as hungry as Tigar was, his stomach couldn’t accept just meat after all his hard work to find the perfect meal.

“You know what, sure I’ll bring some home, thank you bro.” said Tigar with a displeased face.

“Anytime, hope you like it!” replied Landon as Tigar was walking out of the cave with his head down and hand on his stomach.

After three failed attempts to get the food Tigar so desperately wanted, he was only left with disappointment and an empty stomach. While walking home, the only sound he could hear in that vast forest was his stomach grumbling louder and louder. At this point, Tigar just had to accept the food given by his friends, but not for long.

On his way home, Tigar stumbled across what looked like an abandoned campsite. There were tents, burnt logs, and an empty lunch table in sight. However, when walking through the campsite, Tigar suddenly stepped on something soft and mushy he thought was wild moss.

But when he lifted his foot, he was surprised to see what looked like a loaf of bread. This brown, square food was certainly new to Tigar, that it swiftly sparked something new in Tigar's mind. He took the loaf of bread with him and rushed home where he invited Crilly, Ruby, and Landon to his house.

All of his friends gathered around the dining table wondering why Tigar invited them on such short notice.

In the kitchen, Tigar was prepping up the perfect meal he had craved all day and finally, he was ready to show everyone what he had created. Crilly, Ruby, and Landon looked at the food with wonder and confusion, it looked unique, delicious, and also strange. Tigar sat down with them ready to eat his masterpiece.

“Dig in guys! I just know it’s going to be good” exclaimed Tigar.

They all grabbed the food from the plate and took a bite. Their eyes all lit up as if it was the tastiest thing they’d ever eaten.

“Wow Tigar, you made this? It’s incredible!” said Landon still chewing food in his mouth.

“Yeah! Landon is right, this is amazing!” added Crilly gobbling it up happily.

“You have to tell me the recipe Tigar, what do you call this dish?” asked Ruby with eyes full of interest.

Tigar hesitated for a while to decide a name for the dish he just created.

“Uhm...I call it...the Sandwich!” he exclaimed proudly.

His friends couldn’t be more impressed, turns out that this whole time Tigar craved a journey of new flavours, just like the Sandwich he made which was filled with fish from Crilly, carrots and lettuce from Ruby, and meat from Landon stuffed between two bread pieces that created the perfect balance of flavour and texture. As Tigar’s friends finish the last crumbs of the sandwich they were left with huge smiles of delight on their faces, seeing his friends enjoy the meal he made brought a feeling of warmth over Tigar, a feeling of pure satisfaction.

The End

@brightly_beaming

https://www.brighterfuture.live/brightly\_beaming.html

DELISHA SAABIRA YASNI (14)
SEKOLAH DARMA BANGSA
LAMPUNG - INDONESIA

Tigar the Tiger woke up to a loud grumble coming from his stomach, but not for his usual meat! As he sets off into a bizarre adventure to find the perfect meal with his friends Crilly the Crocodile, Ruby the Rabbit, and Landon the Lion by his side. Will Tigar finally find the "perfect meal" he's been looking for?